Workplace Drug and Alcohol Issues

Joseph Tam, Training and Development Specialist, Technical Assistance for Employers Program, Oregon Bureau of Labor and Industries

Our social landscape is rapidly evolving. Marijuana was once reviled but is now widely touted for medicinal benefits. According to the Marijuana Policy Project, 23 states and the District of Columbia have passed medical marijuana legislation and 4 states and the District of Columbia have passed legislation allowing the recreational use of marijuana. What are the implications for employers? This interactive and practical presentation will explore marijuana issues in the workplace as well as those surrounding other illegal drugs, the legal and illegal use of prescription medication, and the use and abuse of alcohol. The discussion will explore delicate issues for employers such as privacy rights of employees and the related issues of accommodating employees with disabilities, which may intersect with the use of or addiction to alcohol and drugs. Are your policies carefully constructed and are your practices carried out with due consideration for potential legal pitfalls and practical approaches?

Facility Emergency Preparedness, Management & Response

Terry Kline, Environmental Compliance Services, LLC

This presentation provides an overview of emergency preparedness for your facility, management of your personnel and resources, and address the actions that should be taken in the event of a facility emergency. Also discussed will be need for your key facility personnel to work and interact with your emergency response agencies; including a brief overview of the “ICS” Incident Command Systems which is used by responding agencies. Key elements will be addressed; along with post emergency situations and working with vendors to get your business back up and running in a timely manner. A document that outlines the key components for site emergency preparedness and response will be provided.

Collaboration Between Agencies to Support Workforce Expansion

Frosti Adams, AGC, Aaron Bouchane, AGC, and Steve Malany, P&C Construction

This panel—which includes representation from Associated General Contractors of Oregon, contractors, school, and community—will discuss various partnership roles and strategies used for strengthening the high school-to-apprenticeship pathway. The conversation will also touch on youth preparation for industry careers.

Lifter Safety Training

Clint Kilborn, Precast District Sales Manager Pacific NW, Mountain States and Western Canada

This presentation will cover topics such as definitions of lifting hardware, shear cones, anchor inspection, clutch inspection, and the common do’s and don’ts. We will also provide an in-depth look at sling angles and the problems that can arise with short rigging. Finally, we will look at examples of common anchor placement errors and the effect they can have on lifting your concrete structure. The products discussed are considered life safety devices and this course has been specifically designed as lifter safety training for plant workers.

3:15 pm – 3:30 pm

Break and Networking

Pipe Trench Trainer

The pipe trainer is intended to streamline technical and safety training, showcase new products, and perhaps help combat a labor shortage affecting the pipe-laying industry as much as any other. The team involved, including sponsors with the Northwest Utility Contractors Association, says the one-of-a-kind device could help educate the entire construction industry and lead innovation. The pipe trainer at NWCOC will be a trench 60 feet long with a 60” manhole at the deepest 12 foot depth on one end for confined space testing. It will have three levels of depth – 4 feet, 9 feet and 12 feet. At the 4-foot depth a removable grate will allow for instruction on the installation of basins. NWCOC training programs will address installation of the numerous varieties of pipe – PVC, precast concrete, ceramic and cast-iron. Corporate reps will instruct workers on manufacturer best practices – to reduce the kind of installation errors that can lead to million-dollar lawsuits.
